

2020 Vaping Summit

November 4 - 5, 2020

E-cigarettes (otherwise known as “vapes”) have been strategically marketed by the tobacco and vaping industry to youth, young adults, and people in low-income communities as a safe and healthy alternative to combustible tobacco products. However, these products are not safe and have contributed to significant health issues such as nicotine addiction and lung associated injuries. This Vaping Summit brings together experts to present the latest research and information on health considerations; advocacy and policy work; resources for e-cigarette prevention and cessation; and the opportunity for professional networking.
